15th

anniversary
season

Esprit's 15th Anniversary Season is rich in new musical connections, celebrations and the finest in new compositions – including five world premieres. Our concert in The Body Electric international guitar festival bridges musical worlds and cuts across cultural barriers. Celebrating a new vision of music, this concert, through pieces composed by guitarists, fuses styles associated with the most prevalent instrument in the world today – the electric guitar – with forms and practices of today's contemporary orchestra.

music director's message

In three of our concerts we are presenting superb soloists who have made significant contributions to our concerts in past seasons including Robert Aitken, Rivka Golani and Tim Brady. In addition, our special focus on Dutch composer Guus Janssen in March includes the appearance of Amsterdam's jazz trio LOOS as guest artists.

At our 15th Anniversary Concert in November we'll launch Esprit's 4th CD on CBC Records (orchestral music by Colin McPhee) and announce plans for Esprit's involvement in a new Rhombus Media film about McPhee. The concert, part of Made in Canada, also pays tribute to The Canada Council in its 40th year of arts support.

As always, the most important aspect of Esprit's activity is the performance of brand new compositions, including music by two of Canada's most venerable composers – R. Murray Schafer and Gilles Tremblay – as well as by emerging stars.

Once again our Toward a Living Art Education Programme offers students and the general public the opportunity to meet composers and performers through attending talks and demonstrations or by participating in workshops. Phone (416) 599-7880 for updates.

We proudly welcome you to join us in celebrating fifteen years of musical exploration and adventure. Our intention this season is to ensure a vital, challenging and enlightening experience for audiences from the past as well as for inquisitive, open-minded new listeners.

esprit orchestra profile

Esprit is Canada's only full-sized orchestra uniquely devoted to commissioning and performing contemporary orchestral music by Canadian composers. In its fifteen-year history, Esprit has commissioned fifty new Canadian works, premiering them along with other new works commissioned by leading Canadian ensembles and soloists.

Since 1983 Esprit has performed almost 200 individual works and, as part of Esprit's commitment to the advancement of new orchestral music for today's and future audiences, has performed many of these works more than once – so they become part of a living musical fabric.

Esprit also has a tradition of setting Canadian music within an international context and has premiered dozens of new works by leading international composers for Canadian audiences.

Each year Esprit presents a subscription series and performs other special concerts, often joined by world-renowned guest soloists. Esprit's music can also be heard broadcast on such CBC Stereo and CBC Radio programmes as Two New Hours, Encore, ONSTAGE and Radio Concert Hall, as well as in several films by Canada's internationally-acclaimed Rhombus Media Inc.

This year Esprit will release its 4th compact disc of all-Canadian music on CBC Record's SM5000 label. The disc features four orchestral works by Colin McPhee – never before collected onto one disc. (Some have never been recorded at all.) Last year Esprit's Music for Heaven and Earth (SMCD5154), featuring McPhee's Nocturne along with music by Alexina Louie, Harry Freedman and Robert Aitken, was given a 5-star rating by BBC Music Magazine.

Esprit's season opener serves as the grand finale of The Body Electric – an international festival of music performed and/or written by electric guitarists. Tim Brady, mastermind and driving force behind the festival, is featured as soloist in his own composition for guitar and orchestra, also titled The Body Electric.

Other works on the programme also feature orchestral sounds combined with electroacoustic elements, including Dutch/American composer Ron Ford's Salome Fast and Paul Dolden's revised version of The Heart Tears Itself Apart With The Power Of Its Own Muscles. Resonance #3. The balance of the programme is an orchestral work composed by one of the world's most famous rock guitarists – Glenn Branca.

On this occasion, Esprit celebrates its 15th Anniversary, launches its new CBC Records CD of orchestral music by Colin McPhee and pays tribute to The Canada Council's forty years of supporting Canadian music. The concert offers the rare opportunity to hear the premiere of a work by one of Quebec's most important composers, Gilles Tremblay. Two of Canada's most outstanding and dynamic soloists – Rivka Golani and Robert Aitken – will perform important concerti, written especially for them. Aitken is also featured as a composer.

The evening will include, for the entire audience, a post-concert 15th Anniversary celebration.

Esprit's season finale provides a powerful combination of great composers and performers. A new viola concerto by R. Murray Schafer performed by Rivka Golani is sure to be the highlight of musical activity in Toronto this season. Golani further demonstrates her stature as the world-champion of contemporary viola music in a performance of Zimmermann's Antiphonen. A special treat is in store through the appearance of musical guests from the Netherlands. Composer Guus Janssen will have his jazz-influenced music performed by Amsterdam's jazz trio LOOS in combination with Esprit. This part of the programme reflects Esprit's intention to develop ongoing links with the vibrant Dutch music scene.
